

Crossref Community Guidelines

At Crossref, we assume that most people are intelligent and well-intended, and we're not inclined to tell people what to do. However, we want the Crossref Community Forum to be a safe and productive environment for everyone.

We're voicing our strong, unequivocal support of appropriate behavior by all participants in the forum.

Below you can read the community guidelines from Discourse which we think are pretty good and can inform your use of this platform. We thank our participants for your help in keeping our forum welcoming, respectful, and friendly to all participants.

This is a Civilized Place for Public Discussion

Please treat this discussion forum with respect. It's a shared community resource — a place to share skills, knowledge, and interests through ongoing conversation.

These are not hard and fast rules, just aids to the human judgment of our community. Use these guidelines to keep this a useful place for civilized public discourse.

Improve the Discussion

Help us make this a great place for discussion by always working to improve the discussion in some way, however small. If you are not sure your post adds to the conversation, think over what you want to say and try again later.

The topics discussed here matter to us all. Be respectful of the topics and the people discussing them, even if you disagree with some of what is being said.

One way to improve the discussion is by discovering ones that are already happening. Please spend some time browsing the topics here before replying or starting your own, and you'll have a better chance of meeting others who share your interests.

Be Agreeable, Even When You Disagree

You may wish to respond to something by disagreeing with it. That's fine. But, remember to criticize ideas, not people. Please avoid:

- Name-calling.

- Ad hominem attacks (explained here: <https://www.merriam-webster.com/dictionary/ad%20hominem>)
- Responding to a post's tone instead of its actual content.
- Knee-jerk contradiction.

Instead, help to improve the conversation.

Your Participation Counts

The conversations we have here set the tone for everyone. Help us influence the future of this community by choosing to engage in discussions that make this forum an interesting place to be — and avoiding those that do not.

Discourse provides tools that enable the community to collectively identify the best (and worst) contributions: favorites, bookmarks, likes, flags, replies, edits, and so forth. Use these tools to improve your own experience, and everyone else's, too.

If You See a Problem, Flag It

Moderators have special authority; they are responsible for this forum. But so are you. With your help, moderators can be community facilitators, not police.

When you see bad behavior, don't reply. It encourages the bad behavior by acknowledging it, consumes your energy, and wastes everyone's time. Just flag it. If enough flags accrue, action will be taken, either automatically or by moderator intervention.

In order to maintain our community, moderators reserve the right to remove any content and any user account for any reason at any time. Moderators do not preview new posts in any way; the moderators and site operators take no responsibility for any content posted by the community.

Always Be Civil

Nothing sabotages a healthy conversation like rudeness:

- Be civil. Don't post anything that a reasonable person would consider offensive, abusive, or hate speech.
- Keep it clean. Don't post anything obscene or sexually explicit.
- Respect each other. Don't harass anyone, impersonate people, or expose their private information.
- Respect our forum. Don't post spam or otherwise vandalize the forum.

These are not concrete terms with precise definitions — avoid even the appearance of any of these things. If you're unsure, ask yourself how you would feel if your post was featured on the front page of your national newspaper.

This is a public forum, and search engines index these discussions. Keep the language, links, and images professional. Safe.

Keep It Tidy

Make the effort to put things in the right place, so that we can spend more time discussing and less cleaning up. So:

- Don't start a topic in the wrong category.
- Don't cross-post the same thing in multiple topics.
- Don't post no-content replies.
- Don't divert a topic by changing it midstream.
- Don't sign your posts — every post has your profile information attached to it.

Rather than posting "+1" or "Agreed", use the Like button. Rather than taking an existing topic in a radically different direction, use Reply as a Linked Topic.

Post Only Your Own Stuff

You may not post anything digital that belongs to someone else without their permission. You may not post descriptions of, links to, or methods for stealing someone's intellectual property (software, video, audio, images), or for breaking any other law.

Powered by You

This site is operated by your friendly local staff and you, the community. If you have any further questions about how things should work here, open a new topic in the site feedback category and let's discuss! If there's a critical or urgent issue that can't be handled by a meta topic or flag, contact us via the staff page.

Terms of Service

We also need to protect ourselves – and by extension, you and your data – against unfriendly folks. We have Terms of Service describing your (and our) behavior and rights related to content, privacy, and laws. To use this service, you must agree to abide by our TOS.

